Transference to the Central Zionist Archives (CZA)

The bulk of Nadia Stein's private papers were donated by Mrs. Michaela Aloni, Nadia Stein's daughter, in 1963. Thereafter, a significant addition of documents was transferred by her in December 2012.

Quantity

The papers of Nadia Stein comprise about 4 meters of material (210 files).

Restrictions on access

There are no restriction on access to most the material unless it is specified.

Contents

The Nadia Stein Papers contain correspondence with colleagues, friends and public figures, as well as drafts of articles, published articles, translations and propaganda material, especially on WIZO. The papers also include private diaries and private correspondence, such as the correspondence with her husband, Herbert Ornstein, her daughter, Michaela, the Hassidic painter, Arthur Bryks and several friends and family members. Furthermore the Nadia Stein papers provide abundant material for gender-orientated research on Zionism, as well as insights on concepts and structures of women's Zionist social work.

Explanation of list

The ordering number of the material is the bold number, appearing in the second column from the left.

The number appearing in the first column is the old registration number of the file and is no longer relevant.

Arrangement

The description and arrangement of the papers of Nadia Stein were carried out by Margarita Fortus and funded by the Deutsches Literaturarchiv Marbach, the Franz Rosenzweig Minerva Research Center at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and the University of Bonn.

Biographical Note

Nadia Stein was born in Odessa in 1891. She was the daughter of a chief engineer who was employed at the local oil wells. Her father died when she was five years old and her mother moved with her children to Vienna. Nadia Stein grew up and studied in Vienna. In 1911 she received a high school teacher's degree in history and geography from the University of Vienna (see A217\112). As women in Austria were not permitted to study for a doctorate degree, she continued her studies at the University of Zürich, and in 1919, completed her doctorate degree in economics and sociology. Her thesis was on municipal plebiscites in Zürich from 1893-1917 (see A217\4). In 1917 she married Andor (Herbert) Ornstein (who later shortened his name to Stein) (see A217\113), and in 1922 she gave birth to a daughter, Michaela. The persecution of the Jews after World War I prompted her to associate with the Zionist Movement and from the time of the first WIZO Conference in Karlsbad in 1921, she became one of the WIZO's most ardent advocates. Together with Anita Müller-Cohen, Nadia Stein founded the "Women's International League for Peace and Freedom" in Vienna (see A217\2). Following her husband to Romania, she founded a branch of WIZO there and managed the propaganda and cultural work, as well as arranging aid for thousands of refugees who fled from the pogroms in the Ukraine. Nadia Stein spent the years from 1924 to 1926 in America and Canada, where she worked as an organizer, publicist and speaker for Hadassah and the Jewish National Fund (JNF), and also managed the "Aid Organization for Jewish War Refugees". Upon her return to Europe in 1927, she founded a branch of WIZO in Berlin (see A217\2).

In 1932 Nadia Stein immigrated to Palestine and served as the head of WIZO's Propaganda and Publicity Department. Furthermore, she worked as an editor for the WIZO Journal, and prepared written and pictorial information for about 50 WIZO federations. She also continued travelling across the globe working for Hadassah and the Jewish National Fund (JNF).

From 1932 Nadia Stein also worked on the establishment of an Educational Film Center in Israel (see files. A217\176; A217177; A217178; A217179; A217180).

In 1950 the British WIZO office awarded her a two-year scholarship at the Hebrew University, where she carried out research on the planning of urban communities in Israel, with an emphasis on women's point of view (see files A217\33). She spent a year in America and England engaging in housing projects and postwar community rebuilding and also made a study trip to Sweden and Denmark (see files A217\54; A21753; A21765; A21797). In 1952 Nadia Stein was invited by the Haifa Municipality to implement her plan of organized community services (see for example files A217\100; A217101; A217106; A21774; A21794).

In addition to the activities noted above, Nadia Stein was also a freelance journalist and literary translator for several Zionist newspapers (see files A217\79; A21783; A21777).

After Nadia Stein had retired from WIZO she founded "The Golden Age Club" in Haifa, a club for elderly people (A217\204; A217197; A21791).

Nadia Stein died in Haifa on December 14, 1961.
